What is Project School-to-School?

Project School-to-School is a school twinning program designed to encourage understanding, co-operation, and mutual respect between young people attending schools in the Province of Ontario, Canada, and the Commonwealth Eastern Caribbean islands of the West Indies.

By twinning comparable classes of students, friendships can be developed through the exchange of ideas, feelings, and information by means of correspondence and classroom work, photographs, various art forms familiar to the children, and student exchange visits. By organising projects related to local geography and customs, the teachers involved can make Project School-to-School an educational experience to complement the Social Studies or other programs at their schools.

Why Project School-to-School?

Political and social unrest, wars, and natural disasters have led to large-scale migrations of people from all over the world to Canada. As a multi-cultural society it is essential that we learn to recognize and respect the many cultural influences that characterize and enrich our land. Social contact at a personal and group level, starting from an early age, is the best way of developing not only an understanding and tolerance, but also an appreciation of differences among people.

Project School-to-School provides young people with such an opportunity to get to know each other, learn about their respective countries and cultures, develop friendships, and broaden their social and mental horizons.

Who Participates?

Project School-to-School brings together two classrooms of pupils in two schools from two different countries. Youngsters and their teachers from kindergarten to grade 10 comprise the greatest number of participants although higher grades are welcome.

Which Countries Participate?

Primary and secondary schools located in the following Commonwealth islands in the Eastern Caribbean will participate: Antigua, the British Virgin Islands, Dominica, Grenada, Montserrat, St. Kitts, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, and the Turks and Caicos Islands.

Why the Caribbean?

Canada and the West Indies have a lot in common beginning with their early trade links and other economic connections. Because of the British colonial heritage, they follow similar legal, judicial, and parliamentary systems. English is the common tongue. Their geographic locations make air travel feasible and facilitate the exchange of projects and low-priced group visits.

How do Students Communicate?

Personal communication between two culturally different groups can build bridges of understanding and overcome prejudices born through ignorance. Regular letters, prepared project books, art, music, day-to-day classroom work exchange visits, and tape recorded messages are some ways in which Ontario and West Indian students can "talk" with their twins.

Santa Claus (Colonel Jim McPhee, Canadian Armed Forces) receives a gift from school children on Turks & Caicos Island, B.W.I.
